

HISTORY

History students at UM-Dearborn research a wide variety of topics, periods and areas of the world, and practice many modes of historical thinking.

At the end of their studies, history majors are able to frame and investigate questions about the actions, contexts, and meanings of earlier human lives from cultural, economic, political, and social perspectives. Producing original historical research, students locate and interpret primary sources as evidence, place their inquiries in the context of relevant historiography and broader frameworks of interpretation, and integrate varied sources in a coherent argument.

Advising

History majors should consult with an adviser before the beginning of each semester.

In addition to the major requirements, students must complete all CASL Degree Requirements (<http://catalog.umd.umich.edu/undergraduate/college-arts-sciences-letters/>).

Prerequisites to the Major

Students desiring to major in history are required to elect two of the following courses as prerequisites, one must be US (111 or 112) and one must be Non-US (101, 103 or 106). The faculty strongly advises that students take these courses during their freshman or sophomore year.

Notes:

- At least 15 of the 30 upper level credit hours for the major must be elected at UM-Dearborn.
- A maximum of 4 hours of History Internship (HIST 3085) may count in the major.

Minor or Integrative Studies Concentration Requirements

A minor or concentration consists of 12 credit hours of upper-level courses in history (HIST).

- A minimum GPA of 2.0 is required for the minor/concentration. The GPA is based on all coursework required within the minor (excluding prerequisites).
- A minimum of 9 credits must be completed at UM-Dearborn for a 12 credit minor/concentration.
- A minimum of 12 credits must be completed at UM-Dearborn for a 15 or more credit minor/concentration.
- Courses within a minor/concentration cannot be taken as Pass/Fail (P/F)
- Only 3 credit hours of independent study or internship may be used to fulfill the requirements for a 12 credit hour minor/concentration. Only 6 credit hours of such credit may be used in a 15 or more credit hour minor/concentration.
- Minors requiring 12 credits may share one course with a major. Minors requiring 15 credits or more may share two courses with a major. This does not apply to concentrations for the Integrative Studies major.

Learning Goals

1. Conceptual: Demonstrate knowledge of the fundamental questions, concepts, and conventions that distinguish the discipline of history.

- Demonstrate an understanding of causation, historical context, and change over time in societies and institutions.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the significance of diverse groups in the context of time and place.

2. Primary Source Analysis: Distinguish and critically engage with primary sources.

- Demonstrate familiarity with different types of primary sources (written sources, art, material artifacts, interviews, etc.)
- Demonstrate ability to ask questions (who, when, where, and why?) that are critical in the process of contextualizing and analyzing primary sources.
- Demonstrate the ability to construct understandings of historical processes based on critical analysis of primary sources.

3. Secondary Source Analysis: Understand, analyze, and critically evaluate secondary sources.

- Identify and articulate a secondary source's argument and assess its evidence.
- Show familiarity with historiography on various historical topics.
- Recognize and critique different approaches to historical inquiry.
- Demonstrate an understanding of the relationships between historical interpretations. This includes demonstrating an awareness of the implications of different interpretations, and making sophisticated comparisons between interpretations.

4. Research: Employ historical research methodologies and create a historical account from varied sources.

- Develop a historical question, and locate and interpret primary sources as evidence.

- Use library and electronic resources to find appropriate sources.
- Demonstrate familiarity with various methodologies (e.g. archival research, oral history)
- Place a historical inquiry in the context of relevant historiography and/or broader frameworks of interpretation.
- Integrate varied sources in a coherent historical argument (thesis).
- Employ standard citation styles, especially Chicago Style/Turabian Style (footnotes or endnotes).

5. Communication: Present historical information and arguments clearly and properly.

- Communicate complex historical ideas through clear and persuasive writing.
- Communicate historical information and ideas in effective public presentations.
- Demonstrate the ability to write for a discipline-specific audience by integrating disciplinary concepts in writing and following conventions of history writing.
- Communicate original perspectives on the past through the presentation of complex sources and arguments.

HIST 101 The World to 1500 CE 3 Credit Hours

This course is an introductory survey of world history from the close of the Ice Age to the beginnings of globalization, ca. 1500 CE. We will compare world civilizations and examine the connections among them.

HIST 102 Medieval and Renaissance World 3 Credit Hours

An introductory survey of world civilizations from c.1000 CE to 1750 CE. The course explores global patterns of trade, technology and expansion, the role of geography, climate and catastrophe in shaping human societies, and the relationship between warfare and the rise of the nation state. Topics include the rediscovery of classical traditions in the Renaissance, the rise of the Gunpowder Empires in Asia and the Middle East, and cross-cultural interactions between the European West and the American 'New World'.

HIST 304 Studies in Det. Hist & Culture 3 Credit Hours

This interdisciplinary course explores the political, social, and cultural history of Detroit by examining ways various groups and classes have interacted with and been shaped by structures of power and influence. The course highlights trade and commerce, newcomers, and the influence of organizations and institutions within the contexts of labor, race, ethnic, and religious histories and current affairs, and examines how these fit into the evolution of Detroit from the 19th century to the present. Where pertinent the influence of national and international movements included.

HIST 305 The Arts & Culture of Detroit 4 Credit Hours

This interdisciplinary course explores the modern and contemporary cultural history of Detroit, examining the ways in which various population groups have been creative from the nineteenth century to the present. The course highlights the work of architects, designers, photographers, visual artists, poets, and musicians, and situates them in the broader cultural context of American art and history. As part of being a PBL Fundamental Level 1 course, this course allows students to address past and contemporary cultural problems from multiple perspectives, allowing to recognize, understand, and respect socio-cultural diversity. (OC).

HIST 3085 History Internship 3 to 6 Credit Hours

The internship offers students experience in types of work available to liberal arts graduates. Regular meetings between the Internship Coordinator and the intern are required. Students can count up to 3 credits of History Internship (HIST 3085) as an upper-level history course in the degree requirements for the history major.

HIST 309 The Russian Revolutions 3 Credit Hours

Provides a broad overview of Russian history leading to the Russian revolutions of 1917, and a more detailed analysis of the revolutions of 1905 and 1917 and the subsequent development of the Soviet Union up to the present. Roots of present Soviet behavior will be sought in Russia's past. (AY).

HIST 3121 Polish History Since 1800 4 Credit Hours

This class offers students a chance to study 19th and 20th century Polish history. We look at how the most prominent ideals of what it means to be Polish – framed as a discussion between the Romantics and Positivists; the Fighters/Insurgents and Realists; the Old and New – affected the perceptions on honor, heroism, and Polish patriotism. A critical evaluation of these models leads us to evaluate the most important historical events in the last two centuries of Polish history – a country with impressive history of openness and multiculturalism as well as grim chapters of xenophobia. Centered on the role of individuals in shaping history, this class also reflects on the identity of Poles – citizens of a country located at the cross-roads of Eastern and Western Europe.

HIST 3122 Poland - Study Abroad 3 Credit Hours

This is an interdisciplinary course led in major Polish cities. The trip begins in Kraków, and then continues to Warsaw, Łódź, and Gdańsk. While there, the class will explore various and often conflicting, aspects of Polish and Polish-Jewish history. Visits to these historical sites will be accompanied by appropriate primary and secondary source readings and documents. During the course of the trip, students are expected to actively participate in ten scheduled seminar meetings as well as numerous lectures and workshops with local historians. While on the trip, students will have the opportunity to experience Polish culture; traveling on local transportation, sleeping in local hostels and hotels and eating in local cafeterias and various eateries.

HIST 3125 Modern East-Central Europe 3 Credit Hours

This class offers introductory knowledge about the history of 19th and 20th century East-Central Europe – often called the lands-in-between – in particular Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, and Romania. It helps us understand major European phenomena from the perspective of smaller European states. We will focus on important historical moments, ideologies, and concepts that formed the area and affected the local identities.

HIST 3130 Armenia Ancient Medieval World 3 Credit Hours

The course is a general survey of Armenian history and culture from the pre-historic period to the early sixteenth century, with emphasis on Armenia's political, economic and cultural interrelationships with other countries and peoples in the Near and Middle East, Europe and Central Asia. The course analyzes how the major political and demographic shifts in world history impacted Armenia and the Armenians. Each era of Armenia history is discussed in terms of developments in the surrounding countries. Attention is given to politics, international relations, trade, religion, literature, art, and architecture.

Restriction(s):

Can enroll if Class is Freshman or Sophomore or Junior or Senior

HIST 3131 Armenia in the Soviet Period 3 Credit Hours

HIST 3131 will study the history of the Soviet Republic of Armenia, when it was ruled by Communists and was part of the USSR in 1920-1991. It will chronicle the broad political, economic, social and cultural developments throughout 70 years of Soviet history and will then study in detail how these developments affected life in Armenia, one the fifteen union republics of the USSR, and relations between Soviet Armenia and the Armenian Diaspora outside the USSR, including the Armenian American community. The course will help students to better understand the Soviet experience by focusing on developments not only in the political center in Moscow, but in the southernmost and territorially the smallest of all the Soviet republics. It will also help students to better comprehend the historical background to some contemporary developments in Transcaucasia (the South Caucasus), Turkey, Iran and the Arab states of Western Asia.

HIST 3132 Armenians in the Modern World 3 Credit Hours

The course is a general survey of Armenian history and culture from the early sixteenth century to the present, with emphasis on political, economic and cultural interrelationships with other countries and peoples in the Near and Middle East, Europe and the Americas. The course analyzes how the major political shifts in world history impacted Armenia and the Armenians. Therefore, each era of Armenian history covered in this course is discussed in terms of developments worldwide and especially in the surrounding countries. Studying Armenia and the Armenian people gives students an understanding of what happens to, in, and around small countries as they find themselves in a regularly changing international political environment. Attention is given to politics, international relations, economics, religion, literature, art, and architecture. Modern Armenian history and culture is discussed in relation to Ottoman, Iranian, Russian, West European, North America, and other civilizations.

Restriction(s):

Can enroll if Class is Freshman or Sophomore or Junior or Senior

HIST 315 Modern Britain 4 Credit Hours

Course focuses on Great Britain from the time of the Industrial Revolution to the present. Major problems considered are industrialization, the British empire and its disintegration, the democratization of British political life, the creation of the welfare state, and Britain's role in the contemporary world. (AY).

HIST 316 African American History I: 1619-1865 4 Credit Hours

This course traces the experience of African Americans from their first landing in Virginia in 1619 through slavery and the Civil War. Emphasis will be placed on the origins of racism, the development of the slave system in the United States and the historical developments that led to the Civil War. (YR).

HIST 318 Early American Republic 3 Credit Hours

This course examines the history of the United States from the ratification of the Federal Constitution through the Presidency of Andrew Jackson. Particular attention is given to the process of political party formation, the impact of the "market revolution" upon life, the origins and ramifications of the Second Great Awakening, the antebellum reform movements, and slavery. (YR).

HIST 319 Civil War & Reconstruction 4 Credit Hours

This course examines America's pivotal middle period, a period of rising sectional tensions, bloody civil war, and protracted debate about the promise and limits of equality in the United States. Among the topics covered are the meaning of freedom in antebellum America, territorial expansion and the development of slavery as a political issue, the collapse of the national party system and the secession crisis, the meaning of the American Civil War, and the postwar settlement of reconstruction. (YR).

HIST 331 The Reformation Era: 1500-1648 2 to 3 Credit Hours

A study of the nature, course, and impact of the Protestant Reformation in Europe, Humanism, the Counter-Reformation, and the cultural and social implications of Protestantism also receive attention. (YR).

HIST 333 The Age of Revolution in Europe and the World 4 Credit Hours

This course examines revolution in an era of global imperialism, considering connections and drawing comparisons among world revolutions in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. (AY).

HIST 334 Europe in Age of Imp:1815-1914 4 Credit Hours

Europe in the age of nationalism, industrialism, imperialism, and democracy; background and origins of World War I. (YR).

HIST 335 20th-Century Europe, 1890-1945 3 Credit Hours

Europe before, during, and after World War I; the rise of communism and fascism; World War II. (AY).

HIST 336 The Contmp World, 1945-Present 3 Credit Hours

The post-war world, U.S.-Soviet rivalry, European/Japanese renaissance, the Chinese Revolution; decolonization and the emergence of the Third World. (OC).

HIST 3368 Germany Since 1945 4 Credit Hours

This course covers the history of Germany since World War II. It examines 1) the postwar period and the legacy of Allied occupation; 2) the process by which Germany was divided and the period of its division, tracing the histories and divergent characters of East and West Germany; 3) the different ways in which both the Cold War context and the legacy of the Third Reich shaped the German experience of twentieth-century revolutions of society, culture, and sexuality; 4) Germany's re-unification after 1989; and, finally, 5) the subsequent challenges in identifying a newly united but increasingly multicultural Germany's place in a unified Europe, focusing on issues of immigration, national identity, and citizenship. (OC).

HIST 337 Islamic Movemnts Mid East Hist 3 Credit Hours

Will compare several Islamic movements in Middle Eastern history, starting with the rise of Islam in Mecca and Medina. Later impulses toward Islamic revival all looked back to the first movement, and hoped to capture both its spirit and its success. With this as background, the course will move to address two questions: How did later Islamic movements understand the history of the rise of Islam? How have later Islamic movements had to adapt their methods and their ideology to different historical circumstances? (AY).

HIST 338 Women&Islam Mid East to 1900 3 Credit Hours

This course covers the historical development of Islam's normative stance towards women and gender roles in the Middle East from the rise of Islam to the earliest stirrings of feminist activism.

HIST 3380 The European City 4 Credit Hours

This course explores key features of modern urban life through the history of the European city. Topics include city planning, the development and changing uses of public spaces, policing and social control in the city, and intellectual and artistic responses to the urban environment. Core readings focusing on London, Berlin, and Paris are complemented by student research projects on cities of their choice. Investigations focus on understanding what it means to live in an urban society, and how the history of urban development can help us better understand today's urbanized world. (AY).

HIST 3385 Sex, War, and Violence 3 Credit Hours

Full Title: Sex, War, and Violence: Gender and Sexuality in the 20th Century European History. This course centers the often overlooked role of gender and sexuality in the 20th century European mobilizations of state violence such as the Holocaust, Armenian Genocide, and conflicts in the former Yugoslavia. It emphasizes the clashes that occurred between gains in gender and sexual rights during the century and projects of state violence that were frequently aimed at dismantling these gains. Attention is paid to the intersection of race, class, religion and gender in the (re)construction of new gender and sexual hierarchies in conflict and post-conflict contexts in the region. (OC)

HIST 339 The Late Ottoman Empire, 1789-1924 4 Credit Hours

The course is general survey of the history of the Ottoman Empire from the reign of Selim III, beginning in 1789, until the abolition of the caliphate in 1924. The course will examine such topics as modernization; imperialism; the rise of ethnic nationalisms among the empire's Christian and Muslim subjects; decocracy; ideologies like Ottomanism, pan-Islamism, Islamic modernism, and pan-Turkism; and changing ideas about gender. (AY).

HIST 343 Germany Before Hitler 3 Credit Hours

HIST 3520 Lebanon in Modern Middle East 3 Credit Hours

HIST 3520 studies the modern history of Lebanon and the country's involvement in broader Arab and Middle Eastern politics from the period when Lebanon's modern boundaries were established in 1920 to 2005 when Syrian troops were forced to leave the country. The course focuses on the relations of the Lebanese state, its various ethno-confessional communities and political groupings with the Great Powers like France, the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union and the United States of America, as well as with the influential Arab states in the region, in particular Egypt, Syria, Saudi Arabia and Iraq. Particular attention is paid to the impact of the Arab-Israeli conflict and the presence of Palestinian refugees on internal Lebanese politics. The course also analyzes the diverse, sometimes contrasting, visions among Lebanon's various local elites towards the country's place in the region and the world and how these visions underwent change in light of evolving internal social and external political developments. (YR)

HIST 354 The United States and Vietnam 3 Credit Hours

The Vietnam War was a major turning point in U.S. history. This course focuses on French rule in Indo-China; U.S. interests in the region; U.S. involvement after 1945; the military, economic, and social nature of that intervention; and the consequences of the war. (OC).

HIST 3603 Introduction to Latin America: Utopia to Autocracy 4 Credit Hours

What we call Latin America today, is a vast geographical region just as diverse as its people, its languages and its cultures. So, what does Latin America really mean? This course seeks to engage students in the interpretation of primary texts, cultural and historical artifacts (letters, chronicles, essays, news reports and films) that provides a glimpse into 500 years of a continent in the making. This course will address the fact that this identity construction comes from the stands of authority grounded in notions of race, religion, class and gender. But also, these discourses from power are in a constant struggle with the marginalized people and their faint voices to ultimately unveil a multifaceted perception of a cohesive continent. This course will explore 300 years of its Colonial period, the fracture of the territories into independent nations, and a tumultuous 20th century that led to autocratic discourses of the 21st century. (OC).

HIST 361 United States Economic History 3 Credit Hours

A survey of the processes of development of the United States economy, their social implications, and the sources of today's economic problems. (F).

Prerequisite(s): ECON 201 or ECON 202

HIST 3631 America and the Middle East in the Age of Empires 4 Credit Hours

This course examines the history of American engagement with the Ottoman Empire and Iran from ca. 1700 to 1920s. Even before the United States became a superpower, it had military conflicts, trade agreements, and an expanding missionary, diplomatic and economic presence in the Middle East. It is in this period that we find the roots of American interest in Zionism, the oil industry in the Middle East and the strategic importance of the Middle East to American interests. In a parallel fashion, America begins to shift in Middle Eastern societies' thinking from being at the margins of their responses to European imperialism to being either a model ally or a new threat. (YR).

HIST 3632 America and the Middle East in the Age of Nation-States 4 Credit Hours

This course will examine the expanding role of the United States in the Middle East from the aftermath of World War I through 21st Century attempts to reduce America's "footprint" in the region. This is a complex history of nation-states emerging from the disruptions of European imperialism only to be embroiled in the Cold War, the "War on Terror" and the uneven impacts of globalized trade and energy markets dominated by influence of the United States. Each society in the Middle East has had to embrace, resist, or co-opt American power as part of managing even the most local of modern challenges. We will compare key episodes that illustrate this range of responses. (YR).

Prerequisite(s): COMP 106 or COMP 220 or COMP 270 or COMP 280

HIST 3634 History of Islam in the US 4 Credit Hours

HIST 3672 Public History in Arab Detroit 4 Credit Hours

Full Title: Public History in Arab Detroit. This course explores the field of public humanities work while providing a topical focus on metro-Detroit based Arab American history and culture. Roughly half of the course will be used to explore different approaches to public humanities work undertaken by scholars. The second half of the course will provide the historical and social context for understanding a particular research question to be examined jointly by the instructor, students, and a local cultural institution. Students will engage in intensive research and work with a cultural institution to represent their findings to the public. Students cannot receive credit for both AAST 3151 and HIST 3672. (W, YR).

HIST 3673 Arabs & Muslims in Media 3 Credit Hours

This course examines how perception of Arabs and Muslims took shape in the U.S. from the late nineteenth century through the present. Using historical developments as a conduit, we explore the treatment of Arabs and Muslims in news outlets, print media, film, and T.V. productions. For example, we analyze the motivation, plot construction, casting, and content of big budget Hollywood movies for patterns of stereotypes and representations/misrepresentations. (FAY)

HIST 3676 Arab Americans Since 1890 4 Credit Hours

This is a survey of immigration from the Arab Middle East from 1890 to the present. Readings from available scholarship, discussions, and reports facilitate exploring the Arabic-speaking immigrants' early and recent experiences as art of U.S. society, including settlement, work, worship, military service, leisure, intellectual life, and primary and formal affiliations across the U.S. (OC).

HIST 368 African American History II: 1865-Present 4 Credit Hours

The history of blacks in America is traced from the Reconstruction era and the rise of Jim Crow segregation to the Civil Rights movement of the 1960's and the current period. Special attention is paid to the migration of blacks to the north and the social-economic situation which they encountered there. (AY).

HIST 369 Civil Rights Movement in America 4 Credit Hours

A survey of race relations and civil rights activity from the late 19th century to the present. The principal focus, however, is on the period since World War II, especially on the mass-based Southern civil rights movement (1955-1965) and the various policy debates and initiatives of the past thirty years, most notably affirmative action and busing. We also examine critiques of non-violence and integrationism. (AY).

HIST 3695 American City 4 Credit Hours

This course examines the development of urban America from the European-style port cities of the colonial period through the edge cities of today. The bulk of the course focuses on the late 19th and 20th century urban environment with an eye towards understanding the diverse residents, cultures, economies, and geographies that have shaped American cities. We cover everything from developments in transportation, architecture, business, and technology to immigration, politics, and urban culture. (AY).

Readings or analytical assignments in history in accordance with the needs and interests of those enrolled as agreed upon by the student and instructor. (F,W).

HIST 4200 History and Trauma 3 Credit Hours

This research seminar focuses on the key problems related to the concept of trauma and history. It covers in-depth examples of historical events, such as genocides or natural and man-made disasters that affected societies in a deeply traumatic way. While analyzing the nature of these events, we also ask about the ways individuals and societies remember, how various generations deal with the difficult past, and what strategies they employ as a response. We ask about the sociological and cultural significance of memory and oblivion; suffering and heroism; repression and any sense of guilt. In addition to examining various repercussions of a difficult past, we also ask about how historians approach the questions of historical trauma – what questions they ask, what sources they use, and which tools allow them to connect the complex past with the present. (OC).

Prerequisite(s): HIST 300

Restriction(s):

Cannot enroll if Class is Freshman or Sophomore

HIST 4401 Seminar: African Diaspora 4 Credit Hours

Research seminar on the history of the African Diaspora in the Atlantic World. This course covers examples of classic texts in the field, as well as significant new scholarship, with an emphasis on critical reading, analysis, and the development of an independent research project. Students gain a deeper understanding of the significance of the African Diaspora in the New World, derived from lectures and discussions providing an overview of this subject, as well as the micro views gleaned from sharing classroom presentation about students' individual research topics. The graduate version of this course includes weightier readings and assignments, with a research paper for potential publication. (OC).

Prerequisite(s): HIST 300 or AAAS 275 or HIST 345 or AAAS 345

Restriction(s):

HIST 4650 Does Women's History Matter? 4 Credit Hours

This seminar explores the development of the field of Women's History, primarily through the lens of the U.S., with an emphasis on recent trends in the field. Students read some of the best scholarship of recent years as well as learn about the origins and development of the field. We also examine how women's history functions in the broader political and cultural landscape by considering current debates around gender and the role of women's history in popular culture. Students hone their skills at dissecting and using scholarly literature and apply the resulting knowledge to current trends and debates in the world around them. For the course research paper, students use their understanding of the field – its guiding concepts, foundational texts, newest trajectories, and impact – to answer the question of whether "women's history" is still relevant. (OC).

HIST 490 Sel Topics Seminar in History 3 Credit Hours

Examination of problems and issues in selected areas of history. Title as listed in Schedule of Classes changes according to content. Course may be repeated for credit when specific topics differ. Primarily, but not exclusively, for undergraduate history concentrators. Students are introduced to current issues in the area of historical research and learn how to appreciate selected writings, which represent the best of recent scholarship. (OC).

Prerequisite(s): HIST 300

HIST 497H History Seminar 3 Credit Hours

This course is unlike other courses offered by the history discipline in that its primary function is to introduce students to the process of intensive historical inquiry with its end being the production of a high-quality, original research paper. As a seminar, it is intended for advanced concentrators who will research their own specialized topics within the intellectual community of the seminar?providing support and enrichment for the other class members. The general theme for the semester is ? Microhistory.? Within this general rubric we will be focusing upon three major issues: 1) Microhistory as a tool of historical investigation/ analysis [i.e., what is microhistory?], 2) the advantages/disadvantages of this approach to historical inquiry [what can it reveal for us?], and 3) employing the technique to produce a discrete microhistorical study [how do we do it?]. The overall purpose of this micro-level approach is to provide a distinct, readily accessible medium through which to consider broader historical trends.

HIST 498 Senior Honors Thesis 3 Credit Hours

Two successive semesters of independent work on a major research paper under the direction of a member of the discipline and the program coordinator. (F,W).
