

PUBLIC HEALTH AND PANDEMICS

Integrative Studies Concentration only

Public Health and Pandemics is an Integrative Studies concentration that prepares students to take evidence-based and data-driven action in response to global health crises. Students completing this concentration will be able to identify the social and environmental determinants of health that leave certain populations especially vulnerable. In addition, students will develop essential skills in health policy formation, health administration and logistics, health education, risk communication, and epidemiology. While the next public health challenge might still be unknown, the core requirements of any coordinated comprehensive approach are explored in this concentration.

Integrative Studies Concentration only

Code	Title	Credit Hours
Select 5 courses from the following:		15
HHS 300	Intro to Health Policy	3
HHS 401	Methods of Health Promotion ¹	3
HHS 405	Population Health ¹	3
HHS 412	Principles of Epidemiology ¹	3
HHS 415	Healthcare Administration ¹	3
HHS 433	Race/Ethnic Health	3
HHS 456	Health Care and the Law ¹	3

¹ Course has required prerequisite(s).