

STUDENT LOCATION AND ADDRESS

The University of Michigan Dearborn is able to determine student location for purposes of conducting University business, contacting students in case of emergency, and complying with Federal Regulations requirements related to professional licensure or certification disclosures. This policy outlines the procedures students are required to follow to verify their location and to report changes in their location. This policy applies to undergraduate and graduate students across all modalities of instruction.

The University of Michigan Dearborn uses a student's permanent address to determine location. The permanent address is where a student permanently resides and considers home. For students whose permanent address is outside of any U.S. state or territory, their location will be considered the state of Michigan. Students without a permanent address will be considered located in Michigan.
